Yale Whiffenpoofs & Connecticut's Sweet Adeline's

World renowned men's collegiate a Capella singing group:

The Whiffenpoofs travel extensively during the school year and take a three month world tour during the summer. They have performed at venues such as Lincoln center, the White House, Carnegie hall, and the Rose Bowl. They are the world's oldest and best-known collegiate a cappella group and has become one of Yale's most celebrated traditions.

AND

“Sound of New England” – CT Chapter of International female Barbershop Singers:

Sweet Adeline's Sound of New England Chorus is a group of more than forty women from central Connecticut and southern Massachusetts who love to sing barbershop music. The chorus was founded in 1993, and since that time, the chorus has won first place in the regional contest several times, qualifying them to compete at the international contests. The main purpose of the Sound of New England is to get out and sing in their community for a unique musical experience!
